FUNERAL HYMN.

Come forth! come on, with solemn song;
The road is short, the rest is long;
The Lord brought here, He calls away!
Make no delay—
This home was for a passing day.

Here in an inn a stranger dwelt;
Here joy and grief by turns he felt;
Poor dwelling, now we close thy door!
The task is o'er—
The sojourner returns no more.

Now of a lasting home possessed,
He goes to seek a deeper rest;
Good night! the day was sultry here,
In toil and fear.

Good night! the night is cool and clear.
Chime on, ye bells! again begin
And ring the Sabbath morning in;
The laborer's week-day work is done,
The rest begun
Which Christ has for his people won.

Account of the Assassination of General Prim.

A correspondent at Madrid writes on the 29th of December, in regard to the assassination of Gen. Prim. His Adjutant witnessed the scene of the assassination, having occupied a front seat in the carriage. His own version of the affair is as follows: "Prim and two aides usually left the Cortes at the conclusion of the debate in the afternoon at half-past seven. He entered his carriage and drove rapidly the shortest way from the Cortes to the war office. The streets were deserted at the point where the Calle Del Turin debouches into the Alcala, the broadest street in the City, through a narrow passage. Two hired cabs were drawn up and obstructed the way. This is so common an event, however, that it scarcely attracted any notice, but Mayo, my informant, dropped his glass in the door nearest to him, and looked out just in time to see two men who were carrying arms under their long Andalusian cloaks, from the shadow of the cabs, to the shadow of the glass to atoms, and the contents discharged point blank at the occupants in the back seat, who must have been undistinguishable in the darkness. The next moment the assassins darted back under cover of the cabs, and so around into Alcala, where they mounted two horses that were tied to trees, and in an instant were safe from pursuit. The coachman dashed the horses forward against the cabs, upsetting one of them, and drove in hot haste to the war office, where the wounded man alighted. Prim simply remarked, 'I am wounded, but not much.'

THE BOUNDARY LINE.—The surveying party, after leaving Pioche, ran along the summit of the mountains east of Spring and Eagle Valleys, about five miles west of Desert Springs; along the divide between Clover Valley and Shoal creek—crossing the road about midway between the two places; crosses the head of Beaver Dam Wash and runs down the west side of it and crosses the Virgin river about six miles west of Beaver Dam. The line will leave the muddy and lower Rio Virginia settlements, Meadow Valley, Dry, Rose, Eagle and Spring Valleys in Nevada. Shoal creek and Mountain Meadows will be in Utah. Latitude 37 degrees north—the line between Utah and Arizona—intersects the eastern boundary of Nevada about three miles north of the road from St. George to St. Joseph. [Ely Record.]

The adjourned session of the Ohio Legislature has commenced. Since the adjournment there have been three personal changes in the Senate and one in the House. Senators Potts, Campbell and Hubbell have resigned—the first to become Governor of Montana and the latter two to be Democratic candidates for Congress. Their successors are of the same politics with themselves. Both houses remain politically divided as at the last session. Senate—Republicans, 19; Democrats, 18. House of Representatives—Republicans, 57; Democrats, 55.

STATE REGISTER.—We have received this week several copies of the State Register, published by Perkins & Street, at Carson City, the Capital of Nevada. It commences with the new year and with the inauguration of a Democratic administration in Nevada. Mr. Street is a polished writer, of sound political views, and will make the Register a success. [Colusa Sun.]

CONTENTS OF A GREAT CITY.

The population of London is nearly double that of Paris, four times that of New York, five times that of Berlin, six times that of St. Petersburg, twelve times that of Amsterdam and eighteen times that of Rome. The inhabitants of Paris, Berlin, Vienna and St. Petersburg added together, fall short of the population of London, which exceeds all Scotland, is more than equal to two-thirds of the population of all Ireland, and constitutes nearly one-eighth of the population of Great Britain. The increase alone in the inhabitants of London during the last thirty years exceeds the entire population of the kingdom of Greece, brigands included.

Indeed, one of the most surprising things about modern London is the rapidity of its growth. Notwithstanding its already enormous size in 1849 not fewer than 225,355 new houses have been added to it since then, forming sixty-nine new squares and 5,831 new streets, of the total length of 1,060 miles! Nor has the growth of London apparently been checked, notwithstanding adverse times; for 5,167 houses were in course of erection in the month of February last. In short, as the French observer said of London, 'it is not so much a city as a province covered with houses.'

The miserable and desperate classes of London are almost equal in number to the population of some kingdoms; they would fill a great city by themselves. They include a multitude of beggars, tramps, match sellers, crossing sweepers, ragpickers, organ grinders, prostitutes, and others, hanging on the outskirts of society, ready at any moment to become criminal. In the second week of June last there were 41,402 indoor paupers and 88,982 outdoor paupers in the metropolitan districts maintained at the public expense; and outside this actual pauper class there is always a vast number of poor men and women, struggling for subsistence amid wretchedness, dirt, drunkenness and crime. [London Quarterly Review.]

THE HEATHEN CHINEE.

The Missouri Republican, the leading Democratic paper of the West, has been examining the Chinese statistics as disclosed by the United States census in California, and concludes:

"When we come to reduce the vexed question of Chinese immigration down to sober facts and figures, we find that it is a matter of comparatively small consequences; and that unless a sudden and unexpected change occurs, it is never likely to assume troublesome dimensions."

The Republican's views materially differ from those entertained by politicians of the Democratic school on the Pacific Coast. The majority of the Republicans are inclined somewhat to coincide in the Republican's idea of the evils of Chinese immigration. The Democrats, and a minority of the Republicans, are satisfied that the present evil is only a shadow of what is to come if the influx is to be continued without let or hindrance. The people of California, aside from their political proclivities, do not desire the presence of the Chinese population in their midst. The Republican can theorize on figures, but the realities are in our midst and they have already assumed troublesome dimensions. The Democratic party East unite with the California branch, and urge upon Congressmen the necessity of legislation that will prevent the undesirable immigration. [S. F. Chronicle.]

BUYING LAND UNDER DIFFICULTIES.—A few days since a vigorous German, fresh from the "Faderland," appeared in Colusa, and approaching a gentleman who was agent for a large tract of land in the interior of the county, made known his wishes to purchase a section, consisting of six hundred and forty acres. The gentlemanly agent exhibited a map of the property, and set the price at eight dollars. The German concluded to view the premises, and after a two days' walk returned, and asked if the title was good. He was informed it was a U. S. Patent, the best that could be had. Being refused a reduction in the price, the land seeker concluded he would take the property. The land agent asked him if he proposed to pay in coin or drafts. After some hesitation, the purchaser said he would pay in coin. The agent figured up and said, at eight dollars per acre, it would amount to $5,120. The German, very much astonished, struck an attitude, and ejaculated: "Mine 'under, dere maugt hat been shum mistake. I vas to hat paid eight tallers for te whole section." The sale was immediately declared null and void and of no effect, and a weary German, carrying a small carpet-bag was seen wading his way from a Colusa land office, cursing the extravagant notions of California land holders, and those of Colusa in particular.
